As far as London is concerned the strike has not visibly affected traffic as yet. All trains are moving as usual.

Late tonight the executive committee of the strikers issued a statement saying, "Results from the provinces point to an early decisive victory." The leaders, however, could not give definite news of the situation. The government has been successful in its attempt to stave off the strike which had been set to begin at 8 o'clock this morning and tonight Lloyd George, the chancellor of the exchequer, stepped into the breach in the house of commons after the day's conference with the board of trade had resulted in no agreement. He tried to break the walkout of the men and bring about an amicable settlement of the controversy.

At a meeting of the provincial executive of the Liberal party held in Calgary yesterday, the first one held in five years, Senator Talbot got the resolutions he wanted, declaring the conventions already held in the south country perfectly regular but making an exception of the Edmonton convention would make them regular, and that he had nothing to do with the Edmonton convention, which would make an exception in the case of Edmonton.

The fact that Senator Talbot might not be telling the truth and that he had no more to do with the southern conventions than he had with the Edmonton one, naturally does not in

A resolution was then passed ratifying and adopting whatever action the convention might take in accordance with the conventions held to date. The resolution works a double purpose as it ratifies the action of the convention and excludes the Edmonton convention from the list of conventions. It also serves to make any distinction in the resolution. This is accomplished in the following manner: "The convention that is ratified, not with the calling of Medicine Hat, Macleod, Calgary and

A comparison of the figures just above brings out the interesting facts as compared with the same day of the year. The gate receipts show an increase of 300 per cent, the total receipts of admissions to the grounds and increase of nearly 100 per cent, the total number of paid admissions to the grand stand and increase of nearly 100 per

Record Breaking Day.—And this record breaking day passed off without the occurrence of a single accident to any of the citizens and without a single case of disorder on the grounds, without the necessity for a single arrest or the ejection from the park of an individual. Disorder was unobtainable, and the day was marked by superfluity, and the ambulance wagon which stood in readiness throughout the day, was not called into requisition. It was not an unlooked incident to qualify the successful success of the day's events, and the only complaint was upon the grounds by the Capital reporter, that was that of a corpulent dealer in oriental precious stones, who, finding at the close of the day that he had not expressed the pious wish, accompanied by suitable imprecations, that the sun

In the enclosure behind the grand stand, the police superintendent said that the midway provided no relief, for here is the broad quadrangle formed by the Police and the Royal Mounted, and it is impossible to force a passage. Restaurants found it unnecessary to solicit patronage, as the thousands were content with persons away hungry, or at least to settle upon them then a time of waiting. ## Man's Affairs Belong to the Public

In a speech delivered to a gathering of the hand-picked in the Oliver committee rooms on Wednesday evening Frank Oliver undertook to become facetious about the question of his bank account and assured his hearers, amid laughter, so it was reported, that he could not see any reason why he should be asked to explain $69,000 in his possession when Mr. Rutherford was not asked to show his bank account and submit an explanation of whatever items may happen to be found on the profit side.

Oliver's idea, of course, was a clumsy attempt to make it appear that if the question of bank accounts is to be raised at all Mr. Rutherford's account as well as Oliver's should be analyzed.

That Oliver spoke without forethought of the situation he was placing himself in is made clear from the prompt manner in which this suggestion of a challenge is taken up by Mr. Rutherford and the embarrassing position in which Oliver now finds himself.

"I have a proposition to make to Mr. Oliver," said Hon. A. C. Rutherford, liberal candidate for the Edmonton electoral district, today. "A proposition which I would like to have placed plainly before the public in a way that they will understand. Possibly it sounds more like a challenge than a proposal, but here it is:

"I notice that in the Bulletin of Thursday there is an account of an address delivered by Frank Oliver in the Exchange Mart building, in which he used the following words with regard to his suspected bank account:

"Now, I had $69,000 in the bank. Just a few words in regard to that. • It is currently reported that Mr. Rutherford has more than $69,000 in the bank. Why should he not explain?"

"Mr. Oliver, you see, asks why the public should ask him to explain the items of his bank account while I am not asked to explain the items of mine. Well, the reason is very simple. His bank account is under suspicion: mine is not."

"But I take this ground, and always have taken this ground, that when a man becomes a public man his affairs become the affairs of the public. He should be engaged in no transaction, public or private, that he is not willing to have examined, analyzed and explained.

"This, then, is my proposition: If Mr. Oliver will submit his bank account to an analysis before a supreme court judge I will submit mine to the same tribunal for the same kind of an examination, leaving the public to judge."

"I think this is clear enough, and I do not think that the public will misunderstand. If Mr. Oliver has nothing in his bank account of which he is ashamed he can easily re-establish himself in the public mind by accepting my challenge and submitting his bank account to the analysis. If he refuses to accept my challenge to submit his affairs to the searchlight of publicity I am afraid that the public will be compelled to draw the conclusion that he dare not."

MANY PICKPOCKETS
AT THE EXHIBITIONNUMBER OF PERSONS ARE RELIEVED OF PURSES, WATCHES AND OTHER VALUABLES

Beware of pickpockets and petty thieves has been the warning of the police department this week, but despite the warning many are victims of the crooks who have come to the capital to steal from the low-riding citizenry. How many pockets have been picked during fair week is a question that can never be answered, but the number could be determined, it would be such that would be a surprise.

On one car returning from the fair grounds last evening were three or four passengers who had been relieved of their wallets. One woman upstairs the street car conductor. That much abused individual informed her that he had all his pockets picked, and that he was not a thief, but a victim of the crooks who come to the fair without becoming caretakers of people's personal effects. This caused others to feel in their pockets and three or four were found missing.

Enough watches have been lifted to put a fair stock in a small jewelry store. One lady had her gold watch fastened securely to her dress front and the thief just cut a piece from the dress, the particular piece being that portion which contained the watch.

At the police station it was stated this morning that no robberies or burglaries had been committed last night, at least none had been reported so far.

PACKS EXHIBITION GROUNDS

the fairgoers, and unique. The zoo, which is under the management of Mr. Joseph Edwards, would in itself justify a visit to the midway. Mr. Edwards was formerly curator of animals at the New York zoo, has made a life study of the denizens of the forest and jungle, and assisted by his accomplished wife, presents an exhibition which in educational interest is surpassed by no other feature of the fair. Something of the ways of the chimpanzee, with his almost human qualities, of the ways of monkeys and rodents and snakes and birds was learned by a capital man yesterday afternoon during the course of a two hours' tour of the zoo, during which he acquired from Mr. and Mrs. Edwards a fund of information of the Selous-Thompson category, at the same time being spared the Latin of the great zoologist. Enormous furs, consisting of a skin and a bone, were among the property of the zoo company and under the management of Mr. Edwards.

Mr. Kemp's model city, which was also visited by a capital reporter, is a marvel of mechanical ingenuity.

Stock exhibits and the exhibits of the industrial buildings were described in issues of the Capital following the opening of the fair. These exhibits are to attract attention yesterday, and doubtless will throughout the week. Stock judging was almost completed yesterday. The Van Slyke Plover Co. gave a demonstration during the day of the work that can be performed with "Made in Edmonton" breaking plows, and this morning another demonstration was given on the field by the Van Slyke Plover Co.

The elaborate display of fireworks by the Hands Co., of Hamilton, was repeated last evening to a packed grand stand. The night was dark, and admirably suited to the purposes of a pyrotechnic exhibition.

The service on the street railway yesterday was quite inadequate for the demand, so much so that the cars were so long as the fair grounds are to be reached only by single track lines. In the afternoon and evening it was at times impossible to board a park-bound car in the city at any point east of Seventh street. The street railways carried a very large proportion of the traffic.

A Fight In The Lion's Den

An event not scheduled on the program occurred yesterday afternoon when Captain John Smith attempted to enter the cage occupied by the "unfathomable" and put this lioness through several stunts. It appeared that this act of daring formerly presented by an hunter, a trainer who left the show at Hamilton, two days after the departure of the lioness.

Contrary to the wishes of the management, Smith insisted on entering the lion before the lioness had accustomed herself to the change. During the rehearsal, Smith was knocked to the floor and severely bitten. This compelled his retirement for several days. Today he decided to conquer the beast and again entered the cage, fully prepared to die.

He had passed the door, when the lioness leapt upon him, and so swift and so powerful was the charge and so swift and sudden, that Smith had no time to fire his revolver before the lioness' teeth had torn his clothing, almost completely from his body and limbs. In an instant the guards had pronounced the lioness so severely that she was compelled to retreat, leaving the trainer prostrate on the floor of the cage. Captain Smith started to a capital reporter again after the occurrence, that he had sworn never to go in with this lioness again, but decided finally to conquer or kill. Now he says he will not well enough about it, and the company insist on the act, they will have to secure some one else to present it.

Feeding a Big Snake

The reporter was invited to witness the skinning of a mammoth snake weighing more than 100 pounds and measuring 35 feet in length. This monster was one of a group of six of about equal size and weight, all the property of the New York Zoo company and under the management of Mr. Edwards.

This exhibit has created much interest since it became generally known that the show was not of the ordinary "snake show" variety, but a rare collection of interesting specimens. Several weeks ago this big snake became ill and Mr. Edwards, an authority on animals, diagnosed the case as voluntary starvation. Mr. Edwards explained that many of the large snakes, so far from being fat, were actually in a state of starvation. Every effort was made to compel the big fellow to eat of his own accord, and finally the tempting lunches prepared in the form of young pigs, rabbits and chickens. Fearing this the big fellow would starve himself to death, Mr. Edwards decided on Tuesday to force the would-be snake to eat.

Fresh meat was procured and prepared in a special form and placed on the end of a long iron pole. Several strong men took the big fellow from the cage and while Mr. Edwards with a life forced open the jaws, the snake was skinned and from the hide Mr. Edwards will have made a travelling bag. The snake was valued at $800.00.

Kemp's Model City. The most interesting exhibition on the midway is Kemp's Model City. This attraction was doing a land office business all day yesterday and last night. Kemp, the young man who built the Model City is here with the show and gives a detailed lecture on its marvelous workings.

Joe and Sallie

An hour is hardly sufficient to spend at the Edwards Zoo. Those wonderful chimpanzees, Joe and Sallie, are themselves a most interesting show. These "almost humans," do everything but talk. It is certainly an interesting sight to watch two animals, so resembling man, that they have correspondingly nearly every body registered in their little bodies.

When placed again on the ground, she is taken in hand by the professor and once more returns to her normal state. Rochester, N.Y., Aug. 18.—The annual campment of the National G. A. R. to be held in Rochester the coming week will be notable for the record-breaking number of regimental and brigade reunions to be held in connection therewith. The unusually large number of reunions is due chiefly to the fact that the present year marks the fiftieth anniversary of the signing of the war. In addition to the G. A. R., the organizations of national scope that will meet during the week will include the Woman's Relief Corps, the U. S. A. R., the Veterans of Veterans, Sons of Veterans, the National Army and Navy Veterans, the Union, the Veterans of War, Naval Veterans and Andrewsville Survivors.

BELONGED TO EDMONTON MAN

One of the most famous bloodhounds of the North American continent, and undoubtedly the most famous in the entire west, is to become the property of Matthew McAuley of the penitentiary of this city. The dog is to be brought to Edmonton is none other than "Sam" one of two dogs who gained most fame by tracing Outlaw Harry Tracy in the state of Washington and being "in at the killing" of the outlaw who commanded the attention of the civilized world in his reign of terror during for a time all official and private. Tracy, it will be remembered, escaped from the federal penitentiary and defied arrest.

This remarkable dog is now the property of William Connor of the Imperial hotel of this city. Mr. Connor has stated that he will have the dog shipped to Edmonton. "Brady," the mate of "Sam," was recently poisoned at Seattle. Both of these famous man-trailers would have been brought here had they been cared for by Sam Bradford, a friend of Mr. Connor.

This wonderful dog is a full-blooded Cuban bloodhound. Mr. Connor has bought the hound for his friend Wardon McAuley.

It is as evident to them as it is to us that our prices are away below their real value.

Compare its location near what will soon be the largest pay roll centre of the city, the fine, high, dry site—the large lots and the exceptionally easy terms, with surrounding values, and the fact will be as evident to you.

But we are going to partially remedy this, as the price of every lot unsold Sept. 1 will be raised $25. But, even then, at the advanced price, you will be getting in nearer the ground floor than on many other similar propositions.
